New York Yankees Baseball Champs

caromed off Gomez's glove to Crosetti who retired the runner with a nice throw to Gehrig. Mancuso was safe at first when Rolfe fumbled the catcher's high bounce. It was an error for the Yankee third baseman. Selkirk made a nice running catch of Whitehead's high fly just over the right-field foul line near the wall. No runs, no hits, one error, one left.

FOURTH INNING

Yankees—Selkirk lined to Leiber in right centre. Powell beat out a base hit on a hopper to deep short. Jackson made a stab for the ball, but missed. Lazzeri singled past Jackson, sending Powell to second. Gomez singled over Bartell's head, scoring Powell. Lazzeri stopped at second. Crosetti filed to Leiber on the first pitch. Rolfe singled to right centre with the count two and two, scoring Lazzeri. Gomez ran to third. As Bartell juggled Leiber's relay Pitzsimmons was taken out of the box and replaced by Clyde Clendenen, a right-hander, making his first appearance in the series. The crowd gave Pitz a good hand, despite his failure to duplicate the fine performance he showed in the third game last Saturday. DiMaggio filed to Ott.

Two runs, four hits, no errors, one left.
Giants—Jackson grounded out on the first pitch. Lazzeri to Gehrig. Clendenen lined a single to right centre. Moore hoisted the first pitch to Selkirk in deep right. Bartell beat out a bunt down the third base line for a base hit, sending Clendenen to second. Rolfe handled the ball slowly. Terry grounded sharply to Lazzeri and was tossed out at first.
No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

FIFTH INNING

Yankees—Terry made a fine stop of Gehrig's hard smash down the first base line and beat his Yankee rival to the bag for an unassisted putout. Dickey was tossed out. Whitehead to Terry. Selkirk lined to Leiber.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.
Giants—Leiber fanned, swinging at a high hard one with the count three and two. Ott hit a home run into the upper left field deck on the first pitch. It was his first circuit clout of the series. Mancuso lined to DiMaggio in deep centre. Whitehead grounded sharply to the box and was tossed out at first.
One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

Yankees—Powell fanned swinging. Lazzeri fanned swinging. With the count three and two, Gomez also fanned swinging. As Clendenen retired the side on strikes. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.
Giants—Jackson popped to Lazzeri. Clendenen hit to the box and was tossed out. Gomez to Gehrig. Moore grounded out. Lazzeri to Gehrig. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING

Yankees—Crosetti was tossed out on a sensational play. Bartell to Terry. The Giants' shortstop took the ball on the run with his bare hand and threw to Terry just in time to nip the runner. Crosetti squawked vigorously. Rolfe got a base hit on a sharp grounder past Whitehead. It was his third straight hit. DiMaggio lifted a high fly that Leiber took on the dead run in short centre. Gehrig hit a wicked grounder directly to Whitehead and was tossed out at first.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.
Giants—Bartell doubled down the left field line with the count two and two. The hit was only inches inside the line. Terry hit the first pitch to centre for a single. Bartell scored and Terry ran to second when the ball squirted through DiMaggio's legs. It was a single for Terry and an error for DiMaggio. Leiber sacrificed. Rolfe to Lazzeri, advancing Terry to third. The Yankee southpaw removed from the box. He was replaced by a right-hander, Johnny Murphy. Sam Leslie, who has already tied a series pinch-hitting record with two hits, batted for Mancuso. Leslie fouled to Rolfe on the first pitch. Ripple, the Giant alternate centre fielder and a right-handed batter, replaced Whitehead at the bat. Ripple walked, filling the bases. Mark Koenig batted for Jackson. Koenig fanned on a called third strike.

One run, two hits, one error, three left.

EIGHTH INNING

Yankees—Koenig went to second for the Giants. Eddie Mayo to third and Harry Danning behind the bat. Ripple was in centre field instead of Leiber. Dickey walked. Selkirk singled sharply past Koenig but Dickey stopped at second. Powell fanned on a called third strike. Lazzeri singled over second on the first pitch, scoring Dickey. Selkirk stopped at second. Murphy fanned on a called third strike. Crosetti walked with the count three and one, filling the bases. Rolfe filed to Ott near the right-field wall. One run, two hits, no errors, three left.

Giants—Davis batted for Clendenen. Davis lifted a high fly to Powell. Moore hit a home run against the upper right-field stands. Bartell lifted a high one to Lazzeri. Terry grounded out. Lazzeri to Gehrig. One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

NINTH INNING

Yankees—Dick Coffman went to the box for the Giants. DiMaggio singled to left. Gehrig smashed a hit past Koenig for a single, sending DiMaggio to third. Koenig barley missed, spearing the ball with his gloved hand. Dickey grounded to Terry and DiMaggio was trapped between third and the plate. DiMaggio scored, however, after Terry threw to Mayo

Pilot Flying Over Atlantic

Flier Goes on Solo Trip New York To Capital of Sweden

The wings of the plane were stuffed with table-tennis balls to afford buoyancy in the event the flier should be forced down.

Weather bureau officials said the flight up the Maine coast to St. John's, Newfoundland, would be through excellent weather conditions, with mild crosswinds.

Favorable west winds were forecast for much of his long overseas hop to a point some 400 miles west of Ireland, where he is likely to encounter stiff headwinds that probably will slow up his speed. Similar conditions, officials said, would face him on the flight over England and on to Stockholm.

THIRTY-FOUR HOURS

Arthur Huntington, who piloted the course for Bjorkvall, said the plane had a cruising speed of around 110 to 120 miles an hour. He estimated the trip to Stockholm should be made in about thirty-four hours.

The plane carries only a wireless receiving set. The flier cannot send messages.

Bjorkvall made a perfect takeoff, the plane lifting its 8,000 pounds gently into the air.

"I hope I make the flight," was all the aviator said as he entered his plane.

The baroness, who had hoped to make the ocean journey, waved goodbye, but expressed disappointment.

FOOD SUPPLY

The plane was stocked with robust chicken, bananas, tomato juice, a gallon jug of coffee and a gallon of water.

Bjorkvall also took emergency rations—tins of biscuits and food in capsules—sufficient to last thirty days. A life preserver was his only safety equipment in the event he should be forced down at sea.

The baroness, who had arrived at the field with a vacuum bottle containing a quart of coffee, was frankly upset.

For two hours at the field the pilot and the twenty-eight-year-old adventurer did not meet at all. Finally they went to a nearby office for a twenty-minute conference.

The baroness emerged dejected. "It looks as if I'm grounded," she said. "He has bought the plane and I can't go."

"Of course I am justly well going to fly the Atlantic sometime. I hope to do it solo with an automatic pilot that will not back out on me at the last minute."

The baroness had planned to pilot the plane part of the way.

To her, the flight was to have capped an adventurous career that has encompassed four years' flying and a thirty-two day motor car trip from Kenya Colony, East Africa, to Algeria, Morocco.

Bjorkvall, unmarried, has 1,800 hours' flying experience. He has a flying service, planes and a hangar at Aare, Sweden. He made one flight from Sweden to Africa and a record non-stop hop to London.

MADRID AGAIN BOMBED

Jerez de la Frontera, Spain, Oct. 6 (C.P. Havas).—An air attack on Madrid by thirty insurgent planes and the killing of 400 leftists near Zaragosa were announced by the Fascist radio station here today.

The planes yesterday completely destroyed a munitions and arms depot in the capital, it was claimed.

MUCH SNIPING

Toledo, Spain, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—Socialist guerrilla bands continued sniping tactics south of Toledo today as insurgents withheld a general advance. One insurgent detachment, however, used trench mortars to oust a group of twenty Socialists from a house little more than a mile from Toledo.

CLAIM 3,000 EXECUTED

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Oct. 6 (Associated Press).—Reliable advices, brought here by refugees from Madrid, today stated the Spanish capital's extremist "execution squads" had killed more than 3,000 middle and upper-class citizens.

While the municipal morgue squad's figure for corpses collected on the outskirts of Madrid reached a record one-day low of fifteen earlier in September, it soared to eighty-two one day a fortnight later.

POLITICAL FRICTION

One explanation of the increase in the friction over political concessions between the Socialist government and the Syndicalist National Confederation of Labor with its satellite, the Federation of Iberian Anarchists.

The role of free-lance executioners, the refugees added, is second nature to the avowed gunmen in these organizations, but the members of the Popular Front parties and unions regard it with loathing.

PEOPLE'S TRIBUNAL

The "Cheka" people's tribunal, understood to be entirely dominated by the anarchists and syndicalists at its headquarters on Holy Sunday Hill, successfully hounded the police and the government over the treatment of persons known to have fallen into its clutches, today's advices said.

Tragic evidence that the "executioners" aim at the extermination of the entire capitalist class is provided, the travelers continued, by the number of persons of liberal convictions found shot every day, at dawn, on the capital's sandy outskirts.

All indications, the sources said, now point to sterner government measures to liquidate the amateur "executioners."

FIGHTING IN OVIEDO

Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 6.—Unofficial reports in the French press today said Asturian miners, besieging the northern Spanish city of Oviedo on behalf of the government, had penetrated the city at three points and were fighting in the streets with the Fascist defenders.

a direct attack on this country," he declared.

Dalton characterized government officials as "ornaments," and criticized the policies of Home Secretary Sir John Simon, First Lord of the Admiralty Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary Eden and Prime Minister Baldwin.

COLLECTIVE SECURITY

Rt. Hon. Herbert Morrison declared labor desired an arms policy based on collective security and aimed at peace rather than the government's "purely competitive" scheme.

The delegates applauded as Mr. Morrison cried: "If that race of competitive national armaments goes on, we are going bang for war with as much certainty as you are sitting in your seats today."

The delegates rose and cheered when Isabel de Palencia, accompanied by a man delegate, arrived as a special Spanish envoy to the conference.

NON-INTERVENTION

At yesterday's session of the convention the Labor Party, backed the Trades Union Congress in voting support for Britain's non-intervention policy in the Spanish civil war. The vote was 1,836,000 to 519,000.

The vote was taken after conflicting addresses by party leaders.

Rt. Hon. Clement Attlee, Labor leader in the Commons, said the party's choice was difficult, but affirmed the non-intervention agreement still could be the best way out if Italy's alleged violations of it were dealt with satisfactorily.

Philip Noel Baker also accused Italy.

He expressed fear that Roumania, Czechoslovakia, and even Belgium eventually would become Fascist nations, and demanded that Britain lift its embargo and permit arms firms to supply the Madrid government.

March to London From Glasgow

Canadian Press from Havas

Glasgow, Oct. 6.—Four hundred unemployed men and women marched out of Glasgow today, bound for London on foot. They plan to join other groups from all over the United Kingdom to protest the ratification of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Japan Troops In Big Parade

Associated Press

Sapporo, Japan, Oct. 6.—Accompanied by princes of blood and high officials, Emperor Hirohito today reviewed the final spectacular parade following the annual war games.

Seven persons were killed and many injured when a train en route to the manoeuvres struck a group of pedestrians on a steel bridge, cutting them to pieces.

BAN ON MOBS IN PARIS STREETS

Cabinet Rejects Proposal to Prosecute Fascist Leaders For Organizing Disorders

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Associated Press Staff Writer
Paris, Oct. 6.—French officials, harassed by political rioting, rejected today a proposal to prosecute Fascist leaders alleged to have organized street disorders.

Cabinet ministers, summoned by Premier Leon Blum to conferences, approved a ban on partisan demonstrations and meetings in the Paris

ROQUE'S POSITION

Two charges were considered for possible prosecution against Co. Francois de la Roque, head of the French Social Party which leftists assert is really the dissolved Croix de Feu League of Nationalists.

One was reported to have alleged "reconstitution" of the league, ordered disbanded by the government, while another was declared to have blamed De la Roque with "organizing street disorders" Sunday between Fascists and Communists.

"TIGER BOY" IN WEEPING MOOD

Seven-year-old Who Cracked Baby's Skull in Bellingham Cries in Jail

Associated Press

Bellingham, Oct. 6.—A seven-year-old "tiger boy" who police said "seemed pleased" with his attempt to kill a baby with an iron bar, cried when he learned he was to be taken from his parents today.

It was the first emotional breakdown of the second grade schoolboy who has shown no remorse for his almost fatal assault on twenty-two-month-old Roland Smith.

When the boy, whose name was withheld, learned juvenile authorities were taking him to the Washington State Children's Home at Seattle today for temporary observation, he cried and clung to his parents as he said a final goodbye.

BABY HAS OPERATION

The victim of the "tiger boy's" attack was found in an alley Friday. His skull was fractured in three places. Physicians said they would operate on the baby today in an attempt to remove bone pressure on the brain.

The detention of the boy in the children's home was ordered by Superior Court Judge E. E. Hardin after a juvenile court hearing yesterday.

Testimony at the hearing was not made public.

CALLED MENACE

Police Chief Ralph R. Reed described the boy as a "menace because he has savage, homicidal tendencies."

Neighbors said they had seen the boy torture chickens by spreading their toes and cutting their legs.

Reed said the boy told him he had taken off one of the Smith child's shoes so he (the boy) could "cut his (the baby's) toes off."

Dr. Stevenson Smith, University of Washington psychiatrist, will examine the "tiger boy" in Seattle.

Taxi Rates To Be Looked Into

Esquimalt will seek legal advice as to the possibility of setting minimum taxi rates within its borders, the municipal council decided at its session last night.

The action was decided on after a complaint had been received that city cab companies were forcing an Esquimalt concern out of business by charging low rates inside the municipal boundaries. An advertisement was quoted in evidence.

Reeve Alexander Lockley expressed the opinion that the municipality had no legal right to set any rates.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

YOU can now make at home a "gray hair" remedy which you can use by following the simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce of hair oil, a small box of Oxley Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up for you or mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. Oxley Compound, when used on gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be disappointed by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

Tariff Ruling Affects Sales

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—Under a Revenue Department ruling it has been decreed that, to be eligible for protection under the customs tariff, goods made in Canada must circulate and be sold freely through the normal channels of trade. Hitherto tariff applicable to goods "of a class" or kind manufactured in Canada carried no such qualification.

Departmental officials explained yesterday that the situation had been created by an internationally known company which, manufacturing its product in this country, distributed it only through its own sales organization and refused to sell it to other retailers. Advantage had thus been taken of the phrasing of the tariff to establish a monopoly.

With the application of the amended phraseology, the duty was automatically removed from similar classes of product, and such action would be warded if circumstances made it necessary, officials said.

Legs of Woman Found in Harbor

Boston, Oct. 6.—Discovery of a woman's legs in Boston Harbor sent police and constabulary searching harbor and island shores for additional parts of the body today. Thus far the harbor waters have given up a right and left leg, hacked off above the thighs, and internal organs. Each was wrapped in a burlap bag and newspaper.

Medical examiner William J. Brickley estimated the woman was twenty-five years old.

Social Credit Plans Advanced

Fleeing Convicts At Trinidad

Twelve From French Prison on Devil's Island Must Leave Colony

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Oct. 6.—Twelve fugitives from Devil's Island, French penal colony at Cayenne, found temporary haven on this British island today.

Five of them, exhausted and starving, arrived yesterday after surviving a four-day hurricane at sea in an open canoe. The others landed here during the week-end.

The latest arrivals told a harrowing tale as they sought refuge with the salvation army for the few days they are allowed here before being deported.

The five—two convicted murderers, an embezzler and two dope dealers—must leave the island as they came, under present laws.

Eight days before they reached Trinidad, the men said, their meagre supplies were washed overboard by the hurricane. And for three days after the storm passed, tropical rains beat down on their unprotected boat.

"The difference between the milkman and the cow," sneered the angry customer, "is that the cow gives milk."

"Ay," retorted the milkman. "But another difference is that the cow does not give credit."

Premier Aberhart Announces 75 Per Cent of Retail Merchants of Alberta Have Signed Covenant with Provincial Government

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Calgary, Oct. 6.—Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the retail merchants of Alberta have signed covenants with the Provincial Government to co-operate in establishing a social credit financial system.

Premier William Aberhart made this announcement before leaving here today on a two weeks' speaking tour of southern Alberta.

In signing covenants with the government, the retailers of Alberta agreed to one main principle—acceptance of provincial credit for Alberta-made goods. There are 8,500 retailers in Alberta, which would mean that 6,300 to 6,400 already have signed covenants. Although the registration period for individuals expired Sept. 30, retailers, manufacturers, wholesalers and farmers may sign at any time.

NOT LOOKING TO OTTAWA
Premier Aberhart yesterday said he had "no particular desire" to be Prime Minister of a social credit government at Ottawa, and in any event it would be ten years at least before Social Credit could be applied on a national scale.

He was commenting on the assertion of John H. Blackmore, M.P. for Lethbridge and leader of the Social Credit group in the House of Commons, that it was the party's ultimate goal to gain power at Ottawa with William Aberhart as Prime Minister.

"It would be very difficult," said Premier Aberhart, "to operate (at Ottawa) until a majority of the provinces at least were favorable to Social Credit." Holding that view, it would be necessary for the Social Credit movement to work provincially at first so the financial doctrine imposed by Ottawa would be received sympathetically. Otherwise it would be unconstitutional.

ALBERTA AND B.C.
On his return from a holiday at the Pacific coast two weeks ago, Mr. Aberhart said he saw evidence the people of British Columbia were favorable to his doctrine. One of his main economic planks has been close co-operation between Alberta and British Columbia in an exchange of goods mutually necessary. This, he believes, could be accomplished on a central account basis without exchange of cash. The system could be extended as well to the East, where originates the bulk of manufactured goods brought into Alberta.

Mr. King Knows His Canada

SOME OPPOSITION NEWSPAPERS are critical of Premier King's speech before the Assembly of the League of Nations the other day. It has been variously described as platitudinous and academic. He is being taken to task in some quarters because he reiterated Canada's policy that this country will not take part in a foreign war without the sanction of the Canadian Parliament. More than a decade ago, of course, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen went further than this: he advocated the holding of a referendum to get a direct expression of the will of the people as a whole.

It will be recalled that the Prime Minister made this statement to the Assembly: "We believe the only way to strengthen the League's shaken authority is to take heed of the lessons of experience, to make the policies of the League conform to realities, to conditions and attitudes of mind that exist in fact in the world of today."

Finally the Prime Minister emphasized the point that the League, in the conception of its founders, was not to be a group of countries set against another group, was not to be used to combat "particular theories of social philosophy or economic organization." It was primarily a League "to further the ideals of peace and good-will among all nations and all classes."

Of the Premier's speech in general the Conservative Montreal Star says in part: "Mr. Mackenzie King, Canada's Prime Minister, presented today in Geneva Canada's attitude toward the League of Nations with a fairness and a fullness that leaves little for any carping critic to say. He might easily have dodged the live issues involved and have been much less definite and much less explicit. But he took both time and pains to make our position crystal-clear to the other nations of the world. The major point he made is that Canada will never permit any League to decide when and where Canada must fight. This tremendous issue must always be decided by the Parliament of Canada and by no one else. Nor can it be decided in advance."

The Conservative Ottawa Journal sounds a note similar to that of its Montreal contemporary as the following extract shows: "Mr. King, The Journal believes, spoke for Canada at large in this frank address. Canada, geographically blessed, does not take credit to herself for superior virtue, but there is a lesson for Europe in the international relationships of this continent, above all in the organization of the British Empire. And Canada does not propose to be dragged into a war in which she has no interest, and over the origin of which she has no responsibility or control, through any automatic obligation. This is simple doctrine, and sensible."

It is hardly necessary to add, of course, that the Prime Minister fully understands the Canadian attitude, and the Canadian people knew exactly where he stood on this important question when they went to the polls last October and sent him back to office with the largest majority enjoyed by any party since Confederation.

"Political Nuisances"

SIR OSWALD MOSLEY AND HIS British "blackshirts" seem to be getting bolder and more ambitious—and more numerous. Six thousand of them were on parade on Sunday and a hostile crowd, estimated at 30,000, gave them a warm reception. There were dozens of broken heads, numerous arrests, and the situation generally looked extremely ugly until the police "persuaded" the "blackshirts" to call off the parade.

Newspaper comment yesterday seemed to be fairly unanimous in its approval of police intervention, in view of the serious possibilities which conditions presented. The London Times stigmatized both Fascist and Communist activities in Great Britain, terming them "a tedious and rather pitiable burlesque," but the newspaper also said that "these disturbances are becoming so inseparable that it will be no surprise if the question of order at public meetings is to be reviewed." The London News-Chronicle told the Home Office that its attitude had been "perilously vacillating" and declared that "it is now its clear duty to review the whole situation." The Yorkshire Post said: "Our Fascists have exceeded the generous bounds we assign political freaks to become political nuisances."

There would appear to be more than a little point in the reference which Rt. Hon. Herbert Morrison made to the incident. He is of the opinion that the Fascists planned the parade "for the deliberate purpose of stimulating civil disorder and racial strife in the East End of London." When a miniature Fascist army walks into a Jewish quarter there is only one interpretation to be put on its object.

What the British government does with Mosley and his "blackshirts" is its own business. But the fact that there is a considerable Fascist movement as represented by these people makes it clear that, sooner or later, constituted authority will be challenged. For if Mosley is not out for a dictatorship, with himself filling the role, there is no point in the theatricals to which he has treated the British people in the last year or so. He has hob-nobbed with Mussolini and Hitler and has said on more than one occasion that Great Britain, under a dictator, would get along a great deal better than under the present system of government.

However, it always has been John Bull's style to give the extremist the full length of rope which the law allows, remaining ever alert to give it the restraining jerk on the least sign of any attempt to take an extra inch. Sir Oswald Mosley has about as much chance of reaching the objective which he and his cohorts have set themselves as the man in the moon.

A Staunch Masonic Pillar

YESTERDAY EVENING OLD friends gathered together to bring a little sunshine into the life of a venerable Free Mason, eighty-six-year-old M.W. Bro. Dr. Edward B. Paul. Twenty-five years have passed since he was installed as Grand Master of British Columbia and, although "the keepers of the house" may tremble, the mental balance of Dr. Paul remains unshaken and his cheerfulness is as radiant as a summer morning.

His Masonic brethren of Victoria District, No. 1, headed by M.W. Bro. Sam McClure, G.M., and R.W. Bro. Robert Morrison, D.D.G.M., with all the sitting Masters of the District, together with distinguished visitors from the mainland, were in attendance to present an Address of Affection and Remembrance from all the members of the Craft in Victoria District.

For forty years Dr. Paul has been a Masonic student, and the result of his labors will be seen in the many Masonic lectures which he has delivered during his long career. His family motto is "Signo Crucis Vinco," and as a scientist he has shown that by the conquering power of the Divine Will, man has risen from stage to stage, always reaching out from the material universe to a wise and beneficent Creator:

"The very law which moulds a tear
And bids it trickle from its source,
That law preserves the Earth a sphere,
And guides the planets in their course."

This fine citizen has brought this idea delightfully to the front in his lecture on the "Globes," where he quotes Wordsworth as follows:

"I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man;
A motion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things."

It is fitting at this time of falling leaf and fading flower to remind old friends that they are not forgotten, bring back happy recollections of younger days and surround them with flowers, for

A Rose to the living is more
Than sumptuous wreaths to the dead.

All will join, therefore, with the old friends of Dr. Edward B. Paul in the expression of a fervent hope that in the autumn of his life he may find joy, happiness and peace.

The Lire

NEWS OF THE DEVALUATION OF the Italian lire again focusses attention on the momentous happenings in the realm of international monetary policy.

News of the devaluation of the franc was coupled with word of prompt support for the French currency both from the British and from the United States stabilization funds. Though devaluation of the franc was known to be fraught with serious consequences in terms of political bickering within France, the evidence of co-operation between the three major monetary powers was heralded with satisfaction generally as foreshadowing further international action in an economic sphere to hasten world recovery. In its political significance, the three-power co-operation was generally interpreted as a move in the direction of peace.

Italy now is forced into the ranks of the devaluationist countries with a drastic cut in the value of the lire. Mussolini's Ethiopian exploit was costly. There have been vast expenditures on Italian armaments and the Italian gold reserve is credibly reported to have dwindled to $150,000,000. For some time, commodity prices in Italy have been rising steadily. Among Mussolini's subjects this new blow at the purchasing power of Italian currency will certainly not increase the popularity of the Fascist regime.

Another consequence will probably be that Mussolini will suffer a serious check in the realization of his dream of turning the Mediterranean into an "Italian lake."

Notes

The modern idea of beginning at the bottom is to take a job as a mere second vice-president.

Where individuals are sacrificed for the good of the state, it is so often a state of misery.

Often when a nation covets a place in the sun, what it really wants is a place in the shade watching colonial work in the sun.

Ignorance is bliss. The motion picture is not so thrilling if we know just how the dangerous stunt was done by a trick photographer.

Outsiders have been trying to "humanize" the war in Spain. It seems so awful to use dynamite instead of nice ethical poison gas.

The boy often must quit school at the tenth grade so he may establish himself in time to marry the girl when she gets through college.

The whale has been recommended as the best model for a streamlined car. It is an open question whether the pedestrian would like being swallowed.

Column Three

A lady buys some wine but she nearly breaks the heart of an old-world Sicilian, and lets it fly in Valley of the Moon.

By F. J. MERRIMAN

DICTATORS may shatter all the Old World atmosphere in Europe, and progress may gradually obliterate all the landmarks and romance of early California, but there appears to be one place where it will be faithfully preserved.

It is in the Valley of the Moon on the Russian River in Sonoma County of California, and the name of the place is Asti.

It maybe that sometimes it is a little less sunny than on the perfect California day when we visited it. But there is never a winter there as we know winter in British Columbia. It is where Andrea Sharboro, a well-known philanthropist, twenty years before the end of the last century, conceived the idea of providing a place in the New World for emigrants from his homeland in the Old World, and started what is now the great Italian-Swiss wine growing colony.

CENTURIES-OLD ART

THERE WAS a depression in California at the time and many Italians and Swiss were among those who were suffering from it.

It cannot be imagined with what gratitude they seized the opportunity the philanthropist offered them to move to this ideal Sonoma County valley of abundant sunshine and gently-rolling hills and engage once more in their centuries-old art of wine grape growing.

It meant a return to the work they and their families had known for hundreds of years, and under conditions even better than those they had known in the Old Land.

Leading Italian business and professional men gave their financial support when experts pronounced the valley to be as ideally fitted for the growing of wine grapes as the world-famous vineyards of Italy. The colonists named the place Asti, after the celebrated wine-grape growing district of Italy.

A SUCCESS

CUTTINGS of the choicest European vines were brought over, planted and carefully watched and years of struggle and perseverance were necessary.

Pietro C. Rossi, M. J. Fontana and Dr. Paolo De Vecchi, brought their high scientific knowledge to the enterprise and in a little over a decade the great wine growing colony was an established success, producing wines that were winning honors in the greatest exhibitions and finding their way into the capitals of the Old World. Hundreds of Swiss and Italian workers had been lifted from slum life and deprivation in the city to a life they loved and knew.

The plant remained open through prohibition manufacturing grape products and guarded through the years large stocks of mellow old wine.

CHURCH LIKE A BARREL

NOW the picturesque village of Asti, harking on the vine-clad hillsides, is once more bustling with activity.

The world's largest wine vat—in which 300 people once danced—is once more brimming over. A feature that visitors note is the Sonoma vineyards and the famous Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. It is shaped like a barrel.

On the highway there are signs extending a cordial invitation for visitors to visit the plant—and hundreds do so every day. Some days there are thousands.

THE COURTEOUS SICILIAN

THE visitors are greeted in a tastefully furnished reception room by a courteous Sicilian who acts as guide and then returns them to the reception room again.

It was interesting to watch this Sicilian of the old school as the sightseers arrived back in the reception room.

With grace that no Anglo-Saxon could emulate, he placed his hands on a counter and beamed at his guests on the other side.

"Now," he said, slowly in English, with a pleasant accent. "I should like you to take some wine with me. What would you like?"

"Of course all the visitors responded. Carle Nation could not have refused him.

Angela was popular, a golden wine that looked like nectar for the gods.

"He answered questions about dry wines and sweet wines. Wines for this occasion and wines for that. Whether they should be chilled or served at room temperature. What they should be served with and when they should be served. Then purchases were made.

It seemed part of the sightseeing tour that you were permitted to buy. You were not asked or pressed, and the purchase of a bottle or even a gallon after talk in thousands of gallons seemed insignificant.

"TOO MUCHA MONEY"
IF YOU PLACED a five dollar bill down for a dollar and a half purchase, the Sicilian shook his head mournfully.

"Too mucha money," he said, and made no further explanation.

You found the proper amount of change before he would recognize you again.

Then one lady interjected a jarring note that nearly broke his Old World winemaker's heart.

"May I try a sour wine?" she asked him.

The change of expression in his face was as alarming as it was sudden. There were several expressions representing, in turn, sorrow, surprise and pain.

Had he been informed that his wife and little bambino had just been the victims of a terrible tragedy, his face could not have registered more grief.

The nervous strain spread through all the guests. His brown, sorrowful eyes rested on the lady first in pain then in anger and then in pain again.

"Lady," he said eventually, slowly and deliberately. "Lady, sour wine?"

But it was blasphemy, sacrilege and everything else. He had no words to offer to anyone who spoke of sour wine. His sorrow would not even lead him to inquire if the lady meant dry wine. It was too much altogether, to speak of wine as sour.

Then the lady asked for some wine made from skins.

It was too much. Somebody, he evidently decided, must have prompted this innocent victim to call with a prepared list of insults on a great and noble profession. So he refrained from rebuking her.

He looked as if he would break down and cry, but he simply shook his head sadly and walked away, not in disgust, but in heavy and genuine sorrow.

PUBLIC ENTERPRISE

To the Editor:—"Private enterprise," or individual initiative, has been one of the most powerful forces making for human advancement. But it needs to be supplemented with "public enterprise." If mankind is to reap the full benefit from scientific progress, and inventive genius. The elementary human "wants" (food, clothes, shelter, adornment) are obvious, instinctive and insistent; they clamor to be satisfied. But the finer "wants" (the desire for communal health, social security, an increase of knowledge and of beauty, etc.) need to be developed. They are largely the fruit of social consciousness and orderly thinking.

In the second place, the higher we rise in the scale of personal luxuries, the harder it becomes to invent any enterprise, or to tempt the rich to consume more.

Thirdly, to adapt a phrase from Adam Smith, a course may be prudent on the part of a great nation which would be folly on the part of a single family. A city can wisely indulge in luxuries which no individual could. Few rich men can afford a park for their sole delight. But a spacious public park, a highway or any similar communal amenity is always possible and sensible if the necessary labor is available and untutored, it will add to the real wealth of the nation and increase the sum of human enjoyment.

Now the "goods" produced by private enterprise must be "sold" (and the "cost" be collected back in the form of "prices"). In the case of social services provided by public enterprise, the "cost" is collected back in the form of "taxes." However, since all the money has previously been disbursed in wages, etc., and has ultimately found its way into the pockets of the taxpayers, it can always be collected back again without hardship or injustice. If the system of taxation is equitable no one need be any the poorer, yet the whole community will be really richer.

"Public enterprise" should be the "make-weight," it should "take up the slack" of the productive system. It will add to the national "surplus" productive capacity (involuntarily idle hands) and utilize it for the enrichment and embellishment of the common life. At the same time, by assuring to every willing worker a constant and adequate income, it would provide "private enterprise" with that "maximum market" for its output which it rightly seeks. J. C. WILSON.

'MID GLEAMS OF MYSTIC SPLENDOR

To the Editor:—What strikes the traveler as his ship rounds the point into Victoria's inner harbor is the extraordinary beauty of the scene to which he has suddenly been introduced. On his right is the long range, snow-capped, with a vision of green verdure rising from the water's edge, and culminating in the mountain tops, "where dwell the eternal snows." All are of varying heights. Nestling, seem to be woods, broken here and there by groups of dark trees—then the shining stretch of water carrying its burden of deep-sea ships, and smaller coastwise craft.

Look downward, and the eye catches a fascinating in-and-out shore line with little sandy bays and little brown promontories, the sea as the wanderer saw it—a very wonderful, summer sea—blue then, often grey, and in the dying day, pale gold, chequered at times by great purple and indigo cloud shadows. Back inland were glimpses of picturesque buildings and homesteads nestling among trees, or standing on outcrops of grey rocks.

Dr. J. A. Pearce Explains Phenomena of Variability Among Light Bodies to Local Astronomical Society

Stars are not as lonely as they seem twinkling all by themselves up in the sky. Quite often they are twins and sometimes they even rival the Dionne quintuplets. From time to time their twins get in the way, and it was with this phenomena that Dr. J. A. Pearce, assistant director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, dealt with in his lecture on "Eclipsing Stars" before the Victoria Branch of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday evening.

These double stars were known as variables and Dr. Pearce took as an example Algol, the well-known evening star. This body occurred in the head of the Medusa in the ancient constellation of Perseus which was known to the Greeks and Romans.

The first observations of Algol's variability were not made until 1667, however, and the period between its eclipses was worked out by an amateur in 1782. He calculated that two days, twenty hours and forty-eight minutes elapsed between its maxima and minima.

In 1899 the eclipse theory of this variable, 106 light-years from the earth was confirmed and in 1906 by means of the spectroscopic it was shown that Algol was not made up of two stars but of three stars. Dr. Pearce threw graphs on the screen to show that, due to the constant maxima, Algol was a spherical star and because of the sharp loss of light at the minima, Algol was the brightest of the aggregation.

Further work on star eclipsing with highly sensitive photometers revealed that Algol was not uniformly luminous and was brighter on one side than on the other.

THIRD STAR MYSTERY
The mystery of Algol was the third star. This body was so large that it swung Algol, which was five times as big as the sun around it. Dr. Pearce said, and yet it had never been seen even with the finest instruments. This meant that the third star was not a dark star, but relatively dark as compared with the brightness of its companion.

The astronomer described other variables. Beta Lyra had been a riddle for a long time and now the general opinion was that it was one star revolving inside another star. There were double stars that whirled round and round together in contact with each other.

Star eclipsing varied from a giant red star whose period was 2.7 years to dwarf stars which crossed each other's path four times a day. Dr. Pearce said.

In the case of the former, the speaker pointed out that one of its components was 900 times the size of the sun, but its density was so small that it was 700 times as light as air. Conversely, the dwarf stars though small were tremendously dense, some of them being denser than the moon and still remaining stars.

The origin of the double star was due to shrinkage in the main body which increased rotation, drawing out the mass to a pear shape until it finally broke off.

Commander H. R. Tingley, president of the society, was in the chair. He reminded the members of the next meeting on October 26, when Robert Peters will give a biographical sketch on Sir William Herschel, the father of Astrophysics.

GYROS TAKE SCREEN TOUR

Visit South America in Films Shown By J. Carl Pendray

Gyros learned all about life in South America at their luncheon yesterday. For forty minutes they watched motion pictures taken in all parts of the southern continent by J. Carl Pendray, who gave interesting anecdotes in connection with the various places shown on the screen. Many of the pictures were in natural colors.

Mr. Pendray took the club on a trip through the Panama Canal, showing them the operation of passing a ship through the great locks, then into the streets of Canal Zone cities.

In Guayaquil, Ecuador, they saw the life of a poor South American community, then the travelogue took them through the rich parks, homes and public buildings of several of the continent's largest cities—Valparaiso, Santiago, Buenos Aires and finally Rio de Janeiro.

The club members saw that in South America there is scenery very much like that of parts of British Columbia. For Mr. Pendray's pictures included views of the great Chilean lakes. They were shown race tracks with massive stone grandstands and flowers everywhere, orchids growing in their natural state, volcanoes being extracted from snakes' fangs, and beautiful girls bathing in the great breakers of the Atlantic.

The projector was operated by Mr. Pendray's brother, Herbert J. Pendray, Angus McIntyre, newly-elected president of the club, introduced and thanked the speaker.

Travel Editors Visit Victoria

Two editors interested in travel in the Pacific Northwest visited Victoria over the week-end to renew acquaintance with the city.

Miss Helga Iversen, travel editor of Sunset Magazine, San Francisco, was here making a survey as a foundation for next summer's work.

Constantly increasing inquiries about the northwest, and particularly about Vancouver Island, were being received. Miss Iversen said.

"Hollywood has realized Vancouver Island is only a few hours away by air, and offers complete relaxation. Instead of spending their vacations at southern resorts, more movie people will fly here for rest and enjoyment," she said.

J. J. Morris, associate editor of the Southern-Pacific Railways News-Bureau, accompanied by his wife, also paid a flying visit here.

His news bureau, he said, had more requests for information on Vancouver Island than any other place. He took with him a number of articles and pictures which will be used in features syndicated in 1,200 newspapers and published in the railroad house organ.

Production By Combined Choirs

In the first major choral production of the season, the combined choirs of the Metropolitan and Centennial Churches numbering one hundred voices, will present Haydn's "Creation," on Friday, October 16, at the Metropolitan Church.

The oratorio is a gradual musical unfolding of the story of the creation of the world, the respective solo parts telling the story, which is backed by some of the finest examples of brilliant choruses. The principals will be Dorothy Parsons, soprano; Dudley

Wickett, tenor, and Fred Wright, bass, all being well known and highly reputed soloists.

The beautiful descriptive piano and organ accompaniments are in the capable hands of Maquinn Daniels and Edward Parsons. The production is under the directorship of Frank Tupperman who will direct the choruses.

Tickets may be obtained from Fletcher Bros. Music Store.

Romance of Province Is Told

Overseas League Addressed By Miss Bowron

Sketching highlights in the atmosphere of the province for her listeners, Miss Lottie Bowron spoke to thirty-five members of the Overseas League in Spencer's tea rooms yesterday afternoon on "Romance and Travel in British Columbia."

"Sons and daughters of the province should feel it their privilege and obligation to put before others its vast resources and beauties," Miss Bowron said.

In a geographical outline she pointed out that the province had 7,000 square miles of fresh water, and 7,000 miles of indented seacoast, with twenty-four inlets over twenty miles long. Mountains, mostly from 13,000 to 16,000 feet high, made the province at once beautiful and rugged and cruel.

Miss Bowen took an imaginary tour through the romantic towns and areas of the province, speaking of Yale, once the head of navigation on the Fraser; the old Cariboo Road and the roaring chasm of the Fraser; and the dusty beauty of the drybelt.

She pictured the sage-brush country, the cattle-ranges of the Cariboo and the Indian settlements toward the coast, with their graveyards and totem poles.

"The Peace River country belongs to British Columbia," she said in reference to the northern grainfields. She hoped a road would eventually be built into the fertile block.

"I pay tribute," Miss Bowron said, "to British Columbia: its ruthlessness and gentleness, ruggedness and grandeur."

A. R. Sherwood moved a vote of thanks, speaking of his own experience in the interior of the province. T. H. Landy was chairman.

Members were notified that arrangements were being made for seating at the coronation procession in London, and that seats would be available for a guinea, or possibly less.

Mrs. E. W. Hamber To Open Bazaar

Mrs. E. W. Hamber has graciously consented to open the annual bazaar to be held by the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Saturday, November 14. It was announced at the guild's monthly meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of the church, Mrs. John Cochrane, the president, was in the chair.

After the devotional exercises, the business of the afternoon was discussed and plans made for the rummage sale to be held tomorrow in the lecture room at 9:30 a.m.

The tea hostesses were Mrs. K. Jaffray, Mrs. M. R. Pearce and Mrs. P. J. Campbell, and the thanks of the guild were expressed by Mrs. George Sanson.

Chapter Sewing For Its Bazaar

The Florence Nightingale Chapter L.O.E.E. will hold its Christmas bazaar on Saturday, December 1, and at the chapter meeting yesterday afternoon sewing meetings were arranged at the home of Mrs. Kyrle Symons, Victoria Avenue, on October 15, and at the home of Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Baylis 330 Robertson Street, on October 22.

Mrs. Kitching reported visiting the T.B. Pavilion during the month and letters of thanks were received from grateful patients. One dozen pairs of warm pajamas will be purchased for the women patients of the pavilion.

Mrs. Macdonald, educational secretary, reported attending the annual bazaar, giving at George Jay School. It was decided to present prizes for the girls of Grade V of this school during the coming year.

In addition to its monthly donation of $15, the meeting voted an additional $25 towards educational work this month. A donation of $15 was also voted to the Red Cross. The Empire study meeting will be held on October 27 in the headquarters, View Street, at 8 p.m. A good programme has been arranged. Mrs. James Baker was appointed representative to the provincial semi-annual meeting at Burnaby this week.

Miss Jones of the T.B. clinic of the Jubilee Hospital was introduced and spoke on the work of the pavilion. Miss Jones is desirous of obtaining vouchers for patients who have been discharged from the hospital, but having no homes here, find it difficult to establish themselves again. Donations of furniture, dishes and bedding, etc., will be welcome.

Freak Diets Useless to Slim

Expert Debunks Food Fads; Protein Deficiency

Associated Press
 Kansas City, Oct. 6.—The "freak diets" of the food faddists were termed starvation course to "physical destruction" last night by Dr. Milton Bridges, diet expert of Columbia University.

"There does not exist any fruit, meat, fish or other food which in itself is capable of reducing physical weight as much as 1-1,000th of a pound," he said in an address.

If there is one general deficiency in the North-American diet today, he added, it is lack of protein. Middle-aged persons in particular are inclined to be anemic, because they fail to eat enough meat, eggs, cheese, fish and gelatin.

"It is about time some of our old ideas were exploded," he said. "The efficacy of fish as a brain food, lettuce to produce sleep, onions to cure a cold, parsley to increase fluid output, broth for strength, port wine and rusty nails for blood building, celery to soothe the nerves, skim milk and bananas for reducing and last, but not least, an apple a day to keep the doctor away, have all been proved without foundation."

First United Group.—The meeting of Group "B," of First United Church Women's Associations, was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Nicolson, 1588 Rockland Avenue, yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. Nicolson, in the chair. Mrs. J. B. Munro was appointed convener of the First Church table at the annual Y.W.C.A. guest tea, to be held on November 4. Mrs. Claude Campbell addressed the group, giving an interesting description of Captain Voss's adventure in the Tillamook, taken from his book, "The Venture Voyage of Captain Voss," following his voyage from Vancouver Island by way of Australia, South America and finally to London. Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the end of the meeting, with Mrs. Munro presiding at the tea table.

Lieut.-Governor Pays Visit to Hospitals

With Mrs. Hamber was Welcomed at Jubilee and St. Joseph's Yesterday; at Solarium and Fairbridge School Today

Fulfilling the first of a series of official engagements entailing visits to some of the leading institutions of Victoria and the Island, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. E. W. Hamber visited the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals yesterday afternoon. This afternoon the gubernatorial party has gone up to the Queen Alexandra Solarium at Mill Bay and the Fairbridge Farm School at Cowichan.

Accompanied by Mrs. Mae Rice, Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn and Major Vincent McKenna yesterday, they first visited the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where they were cordially welcomed by Dr. T. W. Walker, superintendent of the hospital; Miss Lena Mitchell, director of nursing, and by Mr. Hugh Allan, president of the board of directors, and the following members of the board: His Honor Judge H. H. Shandley, Mr. J. Vaughan Roberts and Mr. F. E. Winslow.

Student nurses of the training school were drawn up at the entrance to receive the distinguished visitors, and Miss Margaret Mackenzie, senior of the training school, presented Mrs. Hamber with a charming corsage bouquet.

After the welcoming formalities, the party made a tour of the hospital, visiting the children's ward where they chatted with the tiny patients, inspecting the operating and maternity departments, the X-ray department and the Fleming ward, where His Honor had a word with each of the ex-service patients. The Lieutenant-Governor's interest in the institution even extended to the boiler room, where he made a tour of the machinery.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S
 After leaving the Jubilee Hospital, the whole party proceeded to St. Joseph's Hospital, where they spent an hour and a half. Rev. Mother Provincial and Sister Mary Alfreda, the hospital superior, with Dr. G. F. Aylward of the medical staff, received the distinguished visitors, welcoming them to the institution.

The Sisters of the staff were presented to His Honor and Mrs. Hamber, who then proceeded to the roof deck of the new wing, from where a fine panorama of the gardens and the distant sea and mountains is to be obtained.

The visitors were taken on a tour of inspection of the various departments, visiting the maternity ward, the operating room floor, the X-ray and physiotherapy departments, in all of which they evinced the keenest interest.

NURSES' WELCOME
 From the hospital the party then proceeded by way of the new covered walk to the Nurses' Home. The student nurses of the hospital were drawn up in the auditorium to form a guard of honor in their snowy uniforms, and on the entrance of His Honor sang two verses of "O Canada."

Miss Dorothy Rawson, one of the student nurses, gracefully welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Hamber on behalf of the school, and Miss Betty Slater presented Mrs. Hamber with a fragrant corsage bouquet of pink roses. At the request of His Honor, each of the students was presented.

The visitors were then entertained at tea in the living room of the hospital. Before their departure His Honor expressed on behalf of himself and Mrs. Hamber their appreciation of the cordial welcome and their sympathy with the excellent work being carried on at the institution.

"Four years ago I suffered wretchedly from indigestion and numerous kindred ailments, finally developing arthritis in my wrists and arms. I could not get out of bed except by rolling. ## Lord Dunglass Is Married

Canadian Press Cable
Durham, England, Oct. 5.—One of the hymns sung at a wedding in Durham Cathedral Saturday was written for the ceremony by the Dean of Durham, Very Rev. C. A. Allington. The bride was his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Allington; the bridegroom was the Lord Dunglass, who was at Eton when Dr. Allington was headmaster.

Despite the vastness of the cathedral the doors had to be locked to stem the crowd. The bridegroom, heir to the Earl of Home, is Parliamentary Secretary to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and has been in the House of Commons since 1931.

As the Dean officiated at the ceremony with the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of Durham, his younger son, Patrick, gave away the bride. The best man was Hon. William Douglas-Home, brother of the groom.

The bride was dressed in gold brocade with a veil of tulle and a chapel of orange blossom. Seven elder maids, three or four younger maids, and three bridesmaids, wearing seagreen velvet in common.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester were among the 2,000 present-givers.

Glamorous Gowns Are Style Show Feature

Elegant Materials and Original Designs Modeled at David Spencer's Today; to be Repeated Tomorrow and Thursday; Mme. Fahey Sings

Golden days with a tang of frost in the air bring in their train a social calendar filled with gay cocktail parties, balls and dances, bridge evenings and afternoon teas and all the whirl of engagements which keep merrily busy. And such engagements spell clothes—for in these days of sophistication it is the well-dressed woman who has the entrée to the smart set.

This afternoon at David Spencer's Tailored—a bazaar of mannequins demonstrated the correct styles which Dame Fashion has decreed for every occasion on the social calendar. Entering from the French room to the strains of Len Aere's orchestra, the models paraded down the long runway, which was flanked on either side by a modernistic revolving standard, whose mirror prisms caught the facets of light in spectacular effect. Acting as mannequins were Mrs. E. Chester, Mrs. E. G. Maynard, and the Misses Joan Bradford, Marion Clavson, Eileen Cullum, Gwen Fraser, Vera Hunter, Aileen McCaghey, Dolly McAlpine, Isabel McKenzie, Eileen Thomas and Alice Skellern.

The interest of the occasion was heightened by the singing of Mme. Lugin Pahey, who delighted the audience with her brilliant rendering of "Molloy's 'Kerry Dance'." "Hame" (Davies), and one of her own compositions, "Charlotte's Song."

GLAMOROUS FORMALS
Formal styles are more glamorous than ever. A Duchenne lame coat of white and silver, of almost knee length, and buttoned with self-buoyant from hem to the throat, lent chic to a formal evening gown of black velvet, while another handsome gown of white and silver lame boasted a sapphire velvet wrap lined with the same.

The Victorian influence dies hard, and who can wonder at it after seeing the fascinating dinner gown of black velvet with its black taffeta underlay complete with hoops, the tiny puffed sleeves coquettishly opened at the top to reveal dimpled shoulders? Rivalling it in glamour if not in period was a sophisticated evening gown of black silk velvet over taffeta, the skirt finished with a very full flounce, the low décolletage adorned at the front with a striking trio of crimson velvet arm lilies.

Black is as popular as ever, and one pretty blonde girl was a stunning figure in a Viennese model hostess gown of black velvet, the graceful wrap sleeves with their bands of black forming a double train at the back. Regal tresses and puffed sleeves reflect the Mary of Scotland influence in the formal gowns of linen taffeta and moiré de lune, the quaint coats with their medieval peplum lines translating the gown into a cocktail or dinner frock.

EXQUISITE WRAPS
Lovely evening gowns call for lovely wraps, and Spencer's are showing a number of exquisite models designed by a specialist in this accessory to the well-dressed woman's wardrobe. Particularly handsome was the wrap of Duchenne metal fabric with a large rose design on a silver and black background, its fitted princess lines extending into a brief train at the back, the capacious sleeves cunningly fitted into the shoulder, and a tiny white lapin collar topping the whole. Another of the outstanding wraps was of white and silver lame on fitted princess lines, the sleeves having a

Hollywood Extras Protest Hiring Of Wealthy Girls

Associated Press
Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 5.—A group of Hollywood screen beauties, on location here during the filming of a picture, threatened to leave their jobs today as a result of the hiring of a score of wealthy local society girls in extra roles.

The professional actresses, extra and "bit" players, said they believed the film extra roles should go to unemployed Hollywood girls.

Frank Tuttle, director of the company, (making Paramount's "College Holiday"), said he had advised his studio of the two groups' hostility.

"Why should rich girls who do not need the money take the bread out of the mouths of extra girls—just for the thrill of playing in pictures?" asked Louise Small, expressing the Hollywood faction's attitude.

"What if we don't need the money?" asked Miss Margaret McDougal. "Is there any reason we should not have the fun of working around movie stars?"

"This 'rich heiress' stuff gives me a pain. Anyway, our salary goes to charity."

CHILD OFTEN REFUSES NEW FOOD BECAUSE OF ITS STRANGE TEXTURE

Not the food itself, but its consistency, is quite often the reason for a child's refusal of it. A mother attempts to feed a new cereal, rice, let us say, instead of the smooth, elevated cereal to which the baby's tongue has been attuned since the early days of cereal. The baby feels this rough, uneven textured food in the spoon and out it comes as quickly as it went in.

Sometimes he will delay to try a spoonful, but as he rolls it around experimentally, he finds that he is fearful of it. What is this new thing?

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH HARRIS, engaged to STEPHEN FOWLER for four years, breaks the engagement because Stephen is unwilling to marry her and let her continue with her job. Judith is engaged in this move by her friend, VIRGINIA HENCH.

Lonely and unhappy, Judith goes for a walk and steps in front of an approaching automobile. To avoid hitting her, the driver swerves and strikes a fire hydrant. He is injured and taken to a hospital. Judith, feeling responsible, goes along.

At the hospital young DR. EDEN HARRIS tells her the motorist's injuries are not serious. Later Dr. Harris takes her home. In a burst of confidence Judith tells him about her broken engagement.

"Meet your Judith," says the office of FRANCIS JARVIS, the injured man, to apologize for her thoughtlessness. "She's a real beauty," says Dr. Harris to Judith to break the engagement.

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Judith's murmured regret gave no real indication of how deep her disappointment really was. For weeks she had been practically alone with her thoughts. Those had been weeks whose monotony was broken only by the occasional visits of the Bents, and even those visits had become unwelcome, for they only reminded her of Steve Fowler.

Since the night she had met Dr. Eden Harris she had recalled him often, remembering his sympathetic manner, but remembering best of all his gaiety. His telephone invitation tonight had been like a ray of sunlight breaking through dull grey skies. And now he was being called away on an emergency case.

"I'll stay here, if you don't mind," Judith told him, smiling. "I hope you wouldn't want to take the time to drop me off at the apartment. And I find I'm hungry, too!"

Eden Harris smiled. "You know, the more I see of you the more I'm convinced you'd make a perfect wife for a doctor." He patted her hand.

"I'll really run back if I can make it. In any event I'll call here within an hour." He took up his hat and coat, and added, "And of course we'll try again . . . soon."

"Of course," Judith said, and watched him hurry from the restaurant.

She had eaten many a dinner alone, but none had seemed more lonely than this one. Fortunately the food was excellent, but with every bite Judith wished that this evening Harris could have been spared from a call.

Finishing her dessert when a waiter brought a telephone, plugged it into the wall of the booth.

"For you, Miss."

"It was Harris. 'I'm awfully sorry, Judith. But I'm stuck—and probably until dawn.' I'll phone you again soon, if I may."

"Oh, I'm sorry, Doctor Harris. I'd hoped you might be able to come back."

Slowly she replaced the instrument in its cradle, stared at it malcontently as if somehow it were responsible for the spoiled evening. It was just as she was leaving the restaurant that she ran into Mrs. Jerry Macdonald, and the young wife of one of the junior executives in the office where she worked.

"Hello there, Miss Howard!" Judith extended her hand gaily. "Where's Steve?" Once Steve and Judith had gone to dinner at the Macdonalds, and Mrs. Macdonald was still firmly convinced that they were to be married.

"Steve had a work tonight," Judith fibbed.

"I'm so sorry we didn't get here earlier," Mrs. Macdonald told her. "You might have joined us. Jerry's making a telephone call, but he'll be here in a moment and you could have a cup of coffee and a cigarette with us."

Anxious to get away before Macdonald returned, Judith pleaded that she must get back to her apartment. Mrs. Macdonald smiled. "I suppose Steve is going to join you later. I'm awfully glad to know he's doing so well. I saw him the other day."

"That new car of his? And I think it's wonderful he should get in on that new city contract, don't you?"

"Yes," Judith faltered. "I really must be getting along. I'm sorry I can't accept your invitation." Behind the effusive woman she glimpsed Mrs. Macdonald pushing his way through the crowd. With a departing smile for Mrs. Macdonald, she hurriedly fled.

On the street car Judith's mind was filled with bewildering and conflicting thoughts. She had heard nothing of Steve's "getting in on a new city contract"—but then, she remembered herself, there was no real reason now that she should have heard of it. And the news of the car she resented. Steve's little roadster had done well enough, and it was odd that he should purchase a new one. Or possibly, angered at Judith's attitude, he had spent his savings on a new automobile.

She had a feeling that both Virginia and Bob were aware of Steve's fortunes but had not mentioned them. Judith smiled bitterly to herself. "It looks as if I took my stand a little too soon," she thought ironically. "Even though he had a piece of luck and could marry her now. I'll probably never hear from him again. And it's what I deserve."

that the city was putting in a vast new water system north of town, and she concluded that it was in this deal that Steve must have figured. One of the leading manufacturers of his firm was a patented pipe, and for a long time Steve had been working to get it approved by the city engineering department. Apparently he had at last succeeded.

She found herself waiting for a telephone call from Steve, telling her of his good fortune. To whom else could he tell it, if not to her? After all, this was Steve's big triumph during the four years they had been together. At least a hundred times she had heard Steve Fowler say, "If only I could make the engineering department in this town see the advantages and saving in our patented pipe! I'm sure they're going to be a big replacement job in the north end—and if I could put that job across it would mean a bonus. It might even mean my old salary."

Then one evening, after Judith had washed and put away the few dinner dishes she found necessary for a lone meal, there was a rap at the door. It wasn't the knock of either Bob or Virginia, and Judith could think of no one else but Stephen Fowler. Feeling the blood mount to her temples, she discarded her apron and went into the little hallway, opened the door with a trembling hand.

There stood Francis Jarvis, hat and stick in hand, smiling pleasantly!

"Good evening, Miss Howard. I'm sure you won't mind my calling unannounced like this. Matter of fact, I tried to telephone you this afternoon."

"I—I work downtown," Judith said, forgetting in her astonishment to return his salutation. "I won't you come in?"

"Thank you . . ." Jarvis walked into the room, tossed his hat and stick onto the davenport, his quick glance taking in the little apartment.

"Please sit down," Judith said. "I hope you've quite recovered from your accident." She held out a box of cigarettes.

Jarvis laughed. "I haven't come to announce that I'm suing you for damages, if that's what you mean." He took one of the cigarettes, lighted it carefully. "This is just a friendly call."

"You—you're kidding me?"

"It was then that Judith noticed something she hadn't detected when he first appeared. A faint thickness in his speech, an odd glint in his dark eyes, told her that Francis Jarvis had been drinking. She remembered that afternoon in his office when he had gone to the sideboard for a drink; and she recalled, too, Dr. Harris's intimation that liquor might have had something to do with the accident. Looking now at his slightly florid, rather full face, she decided that Jarvis was more at home with alcohol than not.

"Indeed, yes," Jarvis was saying. "You intrigued me very much. I stepped out at her. 'You know, of course, that I'm not married.'"

"Judith laughed pleasantly. 'I must confess I didn't know it, Mr. Jarvis. It's something I hadn't thought about.'"

"Of course not," he agreed. But plainly he was nettled by the remark. He leaned forward suddenly. "Look here, you can't make me believe you came to my office that day just for the purpose of taking responsibility for the accident."

Judith's face suddenly paled with anger. "For what other purpose would I come?"

"Well . . ." Jarvis smiled. "It's the most interesting speculation upon that a number of possibilities occur to me. For instance—"

"I'd rather not hear of the possibilities," Judith told him, rising from her chair. "I was in your office for the purpose I stated."

Jarvis held up a hand. "Oh, it's merely speculation. For instance, I was thinking that you'll soon be taking your vacation. And that I might possibly arrange to be away at the same time. Had you thought of a really exciting vacation—something like Honolulu or Bermuda? Or you might consider Alaska or California. Somewhere that—"

McLarnin Casts Eyes On Welter Title After Great Victory

THE SPORTS MIRROR

By Pete Salway

As rugby fans consider the dimming period between preliminary practice periods and the opening of the league schedule, Bob McLarnin, J.B.A.A. coach, smiles happily to himself.

"I only wish I had some money, and I'd put in two entries in the league," Bob said. He has been coaching all manner of squads, from midgelets at Oaklands School to rep squads.

From other sources comes word the Canadian Scottish may see a return to power. The once-proud Highland clan, which strutted on to the field to the piped strains of "Cock of the North," has passed through two or three very mediocre seasons recently. But advance reports indicate the kilties may snap out of their slump this year. They have the additional power of some of the Garrison's best material.

Provided Aubrey Walls can weld the Garrison into a cohesive unit with the Scottish, it should have a strong squad. The Garrison have given the impression they prefer an individual style. However, the material's there and the rest is up to the coach.

The Wanderers seem to be in the toughest spot. They have but few of the boys who played so well in conjunction with the Bays last season when the two forces were merged. They have singled out one or two men who are not definitely affiliated with either unit, and may build up a commendable fifteen, but the job will not be an easy one.

Out at the naval barracks, things look pretty rosy. The sailors have usually a wealth of material from which to pick players, although in former seasons there has been a lack of experience. This year, however, the bluejackets should reap the rewards of the coaching they gave the senior B team last season and will doubtless be a force to be counted upon in the cruise-break up the machine.

The Vancouver Island Swimming League yesterday evening staged its first regular meet of the winter season. In previous years the ordinary league contests have failed to draw the support they merited from the public. The series of meets provide constant training for a host of young performers who aspire to stardom. But the incentive to do their best is not increased by small crowds. The average man and woman figures swimming is a splendid sport. But their verbal commendation is the limit to which they are prepared to go to support it.

Over the week-end the lacrosse authorities of Canada indicated their approval of hockey's action in widening the portals of amateur sport to let professionals in one specialized sphere operate with simon-pures in another game. They also endorsed other proposals which have been offered by A.A.U. officials. It would appear the hand writing on the wall is becoming more and more evident as far as the athlete's opinion of hide-bound restrictions is concerned.

Maybe it was the earliness of the season, or maybe it was an oversight on the part of the officials of one team, but ardent soccer fans of the city are hoping last Saturday's exhibition between the Wests and the Saanich Thistles is not indicative of the programme facing them this winter. Of course, it might have been a hang-over from the world series which caused the Thistles to field a team of nine men.

Judging from reports, the North Shore Braves are providing the color and attractiveness required to make box lacrosse play-offs a successful financial venture in Toronto. The Indians, including the combined forces of the coast and the Six Nations, seem to have found a receptive spot in the hearts of Toronto's fan-gang.

CATHOLIC Y.P.S.

The bowling section of the Catholic Young People's Club will play the first game of the season tonight at the Olympic Bowling Alley at 7 o'clock. All members who wish to find a place on the teams should attend.

Great Left Hand Rips and Tears Into Canzoneri

Vancouver Beller Relies Solely on Southpaw to Win Ten-round Decision

May Take Bout With Lou Ambers

Canadian Press

New York, Oct. 6.—Jimmy McLarnin, the clouting Canadian who was supposedly to hang up his gloves and quit the ring little more than a year ago found himself very much in the fight picture again today after applying an artistic shellacking to pug-nosed Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight king.

McLarnin turned the tables on the New York Italian last night at Madison Square Garden before a crowd of 11,423 cash customers, who shouted their heads off as the hardy little warrior went ten slashing rounds. Last May Tony gave Jimmy a ten-round licking.

McLarnin carried off the unanimous decision after left-handed Canzoneri into bloody submission. Tony survived a three-second knockdown in the second round, when he was flattened by a straight right to the chin. He finished gamely despite gashes around both eyes, his nose and mouth. McLarnin outpointed his rival in every round except the first and tenth, which Tony won, and the fourth, which was even.

BEST IN TWO YEARS

Ringside critics were unanimous in rating the Vancouver veteran's performance his best here in at least two years, despite the fact his victim lacked anything like the speedy aggressiveness of his best days. "There's nothing like married life to keep a fellow attending to business," grinned McLarnin, after being besieged by admirers in his riotous dressing-room. "I've got to hustle now and I feel like I've got a lot more fighting in my system."

McLarnin is already financially fixed for life, under the guidance of his long-time manager, Pop Foster, but they talked eagerly of the chance to regain the welterweight title from Barney Ross, Chicago.

The Garden's energetic promoter, Jimmy Johnston, lost no time starting negotiations for a fourth McLarnin-Ross fight to be held some time this winter. They waged three outdoor battles for the welterweight crown, splitting two decisions in 1934 and fighting the rubber match in 1935, with Ross the victor on a split verdict.

"The McLarnin-Ross match now is a natural," said Johnston. "We may try to sign McLarnin to fight Lou Ambers, the new lightweight champion, in the meantime, the winner to take on Barney."

Ambers and his manager, Al Weill, both expressed willingness to take a match with McLarnin, despite Jimmy's reputation for spreading "sudden death" among the lightweighters. Canzoneri is the latest of a long line of lightweighters to find too much dynamite in the Canadian's accurate fists.

"Canzoneri couldn't get away from my left," explained McLarnin. "My timing was better than it has been in a long time. The fight I lost to Tony last spring helped put me back in shape. My legs had all the speed I needed."

The 29-year-old McLarnin had an eight-pound pull in the weights, scaling 145 to the 27-year-old Canzoneri's 137.

The former lightweight champion, who was outsped and beaten by Ambers for the title only a month ago in the Garden, was slow and erratic. Tony took ten punches to every one he landed.

Huston After Brooklyn Club

Brunswick, Ga., Oct. 6.—Col. T. L. Huston, before departing from his Butler Island plantation near here for the world baseball series, said: "It's on the line and it's their next move."

The former part owner of the New York Yankees was speaking of the $1,500,000 he recently laid on the table for the Brooklyn Baseball Club.

"I'll be straightened out at the world series," the colonel said in reply to a question: "Are you going to buy the Dodgers?"

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

THE BOY WHO PLAYED HAMLET!
WILLIAM HENRY WEST BETTY - AT THE AGE OF 11, TOOK THE SHAKESPEARIAN ROLE IN A PROFESSIONAL COMPANY AFTER HAVING LEARNED IT IN 3 HOURS... AT 13 HE WAS RECOGNIZED AS THE GREATEST TRAGEDIAN OF HIS TIME! - England, 19th Century -

THE BOY TRAGEDIAN
Born on September 13, 1791, at Shrewsbury, England, William Henry West Betty made his first appearance on the stage at the age of eleven in an English version of Voltaire's "Zaire."

Chosen a short time later for the role of Hamlet with a professional company, the youthful actor learned his part, the longest in the play, in the astounding time of three hours. So successful was his performance that overnight he became acclaimed as one of the greatest Shakespearian actors of his time.

Attracting huge crowds wherever he played, it was necessary to call out troops for the preservation of order when Betty appeared at Covent Gardens.

Honors and riches were showered upon "the boy wonder of the stage." Recognized by critics as the world's greatest living tragedian, Betty was presented to the Queen by George III himself. On one occasion the Prime Minister, William Pitt, adjourned the House of Commons so the members might be on time to witness Betty's portrayal of Hamlet.

Retiring at seventeen for an education at Christ's College, Cambridge, Betty sought to renew his stage career four years later. Strange as it seems, he was a complete failure. He again returned to spend the rest of his days living comfortably on the huge fortune he had made as a boy.

"WILD CAT" ORIGIN
During the early 1880's, unscrupulous American bankers set up banks in undeveloped regions of the country, almost entirely uninhabited except for wild beasts.

Called "wild cat banks" because of this, their operators issued notes on them and foisted these off on the unsuspecting public in exchange for cash and sound bank notes. Few of the notes were ever redeemed for seldom did any of them find their way back to the remote regions where they were issued.

THREE-GAUGE RAILWAY
In the years before the standardization of American equipment, many of the railroads were built to accommodate three different gauges of tracks. Such was the Delaware & Hudson Railroad.

First Cup Rugby Game Here Dec. 5

Australians Whip Duncan

Duncan, Oct. 6.—Scoring in an impressive fashion in their second game, the Australian girls' hockey team swamped the local squad here yesterday by a score of 13 to 1 at the Cowichan Cricket Club grounds before a large crowd.

Ringing up six and five goals respectively, May Pearce and Margaret Knight topped the scoring list for the girls from down under, while C. McKee netted three and M. Taylor found the Duncan webbing for the other goal. Duncan was saved from a love defeat when Eleanor Holton snapped hope a shot just before the final whistle.

Following the match the Australian team left for Victoria where they caught the midnight boat for Vancouver.

Arrangements for Victoria's two matches in the McKee Cup series, to be played at Macdonald Park on December 5 and 26, and announcement of plans for a special rugby week for secondary schools in Vancouver during the Christmas holidays featured yesterday evening's meeting of the Victoria Rugby Union.

The local reps are scheduled to face Varsity on December 5 and Vancouver on Boxing Day, according to the present plans for Big Three play.

The rugby week in Vancouver will be open to teams from Vancouver high schools, from Vancouver Island high schools, North and West Vancouver high schools and private schools of British Columbia.

Both Province and Rounsfell Cup matches, emblematic of provincial club champions in the intermediate and senior divisions, will be staged in Vancouver, probably at the end of February.

INTERMEDIATE FEATURE
Owing to the fact the Fifth Brigade will have no senior team in competition this year, the Federation of the Cup, trophy symbolic of inter-militia honors in the Armistice Day game, will be at stake in the match between the intermediate squads of the Gunners and the Scottish on that day.

In order to keep old rugby players together, the union went on record endorsing a Vancouver proposal for the formation of an ex-rugby players' association. Organization of the group was left in the hands of Russel Ker, Carew Martin, W. C. Moresby, K.C. Frank Skilling, Reg Wemman, Alex. Gillespie and Bob Travis.

The meeting yesterday evening appointed E. J. Stephens treasurer of the local union, to succeed Fred Cabeldu, who withdrew from office owing to the pressure of his private business.

London, Oct. 6.—Lord Glanely's Buckleigh was favorite at 10 to 1 in yesterday's end-over odds for the Cesarewitch, to be run at Newmarket October 14.

Other odds: A. Bozeman's Newtown Ford and Lady McAlmont's Avondale 100 to 7, Chrysler Second and Hoplite 20 to 1, New Belston 22 to 1, Soler Bear 25 to 1, Jack Tur and Coup de Roi 28 to 1, Woodstock, Pet and Queen Shilling 33 to 1, Weatherane 40 to 1, Conspirator 50 to 1.

Str. Abe Bailey's Dan Bulger was favorite at 21 to 2 for the Cambridge-shire Stakes, at Newmarket October 28.

Lady Ball's Finalist and O. Ashworth's Pegomas were quoted at 15 to 1. Other odds: Aldine 100 to 6, Noble Turk 22 to 1, Harina 25 to 1, Commandant 28 to 1, Hairan 40 to 1.

Cricket Club Meeting Oct. 15

The Victoria Cricket Club will hold its annual meeting in Spencer's dining-room Thursday evening, October 15, at 7 o'clock. The business session will take place following the supper. Election of officers for the 1937 season submission of reports by the retiring executive and new business is the agenda. All members are urged to attend.

ROUGHIDER HURT
Regina, Oct. 6.—Championship hopes of Regina Roughriders were handed a blow yesterday when it was learned that Ralph Pierce, ace backfielder and assistant coach, had suffered a cracked collar bone in the game against Winnipeg Saturday.

FOURSOMES AT OAK BAY LINKS
On Thanksgiving Day, Monday, October 12, 1936, a mixed foursomes will be played at the Victoria Golf Club, consisting of eighteen holes medal play with half the combined handicaps allowed. Players will choose their partners, opponents and arrange for their starting times. Post entries will be accepted.

CITY TO MEET
Victoria City first and second division soccer elevens will meet in the field and should not have much trouble with the Garrison, who have only been seen in action once, on which occasion a loss was chalked against them.

The Longshoremen have a young and aggressive team in the field, and are favored to take the James Bay squad into camp.

Indians Get Off To Flying Start And Hold Orillia

Score 8 to 6 Victory in Second Game After Leading 4 to 0 at Half

Third Game On Tomorrow Night

Toronto, Oct. 6.—War whoops of Vancouver's Squamish Indians echoed through deserted corridors of Maple Leaf Gardens today—and with good reason. Flushed with victory, the Redskins were back in the thick of the battle for the Canadian box lacrosse championship, their series with Orillia Terriers deadlocked at one game apiece.

Down one game and not conceding much chance against the powerful Terriers, who had held the title for the last two years, the Braves outplayed the champions here last night and stalked away with an 8 to 6 victory.

Third battle of the best-of-five series goes on tomorrow and the fourth Friday. If a fifth is necessary, it will be played Monday, Thanksgiving Day.

Dazzled by the speed and flashing combination of both teams, a record-breaking crowd of approximately 8,000 made the Gardens' rafters ring with their roars of approval.

GET EARLY LEAD

Outfitted with new suction-sole running shoes and aware of the mistakes they made in the opening skirmish, the Indians, playing under North Shore Lacrosse Club colors, scored four times in the first half, while holding their pale-face foes scoreless.

The Redskins added another four in the final half when Terrier marksmen finally found the next for their half-down in a typical late rally, which this time was not successful.

Coach Ken McNab of the Terriers paid tribute to the fighting spirit of the Pacific Coast challengers, but made it clear his charges would be right back in the fight.

"Our marksmanship was not so hot and our passing plays were not clicking as well as usual. Tomorrow, however, is another night. Both teams suffered minor cuts and bruises in the fast, hard-checking struggle with the most seriously injured being tribesman Ray Baker.

BREAKS FINGER

The crafty Indian home player suffered a broken finger in his left hand when struck by a stick. Coach Andy Paul said he might not start tomorrow.

"It was sure a hardchecking fight," Chief Paul said, "with lots of bumps handed out. My boys were better and deserved to win. They were faster and more deceptive than the Terriers."

"You know, these new shoes made a big difference and were a big factor in our victory. In the game Friday the boys were slipping badly on the smooth concrete floor with their old flat-soled ones."

"I knew we could do it and so did the boys. We will sure try to end that series Friday."

Ripple Is Proving Rookie Sensation

Young Outfielder of New York Giants Has Outshone Joe DiMaggio, Yanks' Ace, in Current World Baseball Series; Cinder Gave Him His Chance

New York, Oct. 6.—Joe DiMaggio won acclaim as the greatest major league rookie of 1936 but the thousands who have watched the dramatic world series battles so far aren't so sure.

With a team that has been stumbling along, Ripple actually has surpassed the world series exploits of the young Italian from the Golden Gate, today's figures reveal. At bat, he has smashed out four hits in twelve chances and driven in three runs.

DiMaggio has hit safely six times out of twenty and driven in two runs.

More than that, Ripple has come through almost every time in a pinch, whereas DiMaggio has failed twice, hitting into double plays when one run meant a ball game.

WAS SPECTACULAR

Both have turned in some fielding masterpieces, but the gems were produced by Ripple with two tumbling, shoeing catches that cheated the Yankees out of sure hits. His leaping, rolling catch yesterday of Red Rolfe's low line drive was one of the most spectacular in world series history.

A flying cinder gave Ripple his big chance with the Giants.

Hank Leiber, one of the greatest hitters of the 1935 campaign, had the centre-field berth clinched as the Giants opened their season and then stuck around the lower regions of the first division.

One day a cinder buried in Leiber's eye, Manager Bill Terry called for Ripple.

From that very day on, the Giants were next to unstoppable, driving through to the pennant.

B.C. to Attend Finance Parley

But Province Seeks Change in Date of Conference at Ottawa

A delay of a week or two in the date for the proposed conference of Dominion and provincial representatives at Ottawa on financial matters likely will be suggested by the British Columbia Government, it was indicated today following receipt yesterday of an invitation from Hon. Charles Dunning, Federal Finance Minister, to attend such a meeting.

The federal authorities propose November 25 as the date for the meeting, at which various matters of Dominion-provincial financial relationships would be discussed, including improvement of tax collections, multiplicity of taxation, marketing of bonds and related subjects.

This would have been acceptable to the provincial government had it not just fixed the opening date for the fall session of the Legislature as October 27. It will require at least four weeks, possibly five, to dispatch the business of the session. The B.C. representatives to the Ottawa meeting, probably Premier Pattullo and Hon. John Hart, would thus be unable to attend, being busy here with seasonal details.

As British Columbia is anxious to participate in the national discussions, an alternative date for the meeting will be suggested.

TO TERMINATE MINISTRY HERE

Rev. W. R. Brown Will End James Bay Pastorate Next June

Rev. W. R. Brown of Victoria West and James Bay United Churches is expected to terminate his ministry with the congregation at the end of the conference year in June.

Reports indicated the congregation is in a healthy condition and has plans for a new building on the corner of Menzies and Michigan Streets.

There was a programme of music and speaking, which included an address by P. W. Davey, and musical numbers by Mrs. A. C. Pollard, Miss Marjorie Dixon, Mrs. Southern and a dramatic story by C. Lancelotti. Fruit and flowers were disposed of by Cecil Davies. Refreshments were served by the ladies, under the direction of the acting president, Mrs. F. Schroeder.

Lake Hill Community Centre will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

CHILD SLAYER APPEAL ENDS

Judgment Reserved on Appeal For Heavier Sentence Against C. Garrigan

Judgment was reserved by the British Columbia Court of Appeal in the case of Rex vs. Clarence Garrigan when argument closed at this morning's sitting.

The appeal was made on behalf of the crown, claiming the sentence of three years imposed upon Garrigan was insufficient. Garrigan was charged with the murder of his infant child at Ashcroft this year. The jury at the trial at the Kamloops Assizes brought in a verdict of manslaughter. Mr. Justice A. M. Manson imposed sentence of three years.

Col. Eric Pepler, appearing for the crown, declared there was no question over the fact Garrigan had been intoxicated when the crime was committed. He was not, however, a habitual drinker and his drinking did not assist to insanity.

NOT ENTITLED TO LENIENCY
 The fact that the man was drunk and "drunk" was not a higher sentence. Col. Pepler contended, "If drunkenness is to be given as a claim for leniency, it means all a man has to do is go out and get sufficiently drunk to convince a jury he is not responsible and then commit the crime."

C. Carmichael, appearing for Garrigan, contended the prisoner was so "utterly and completely drunk that fifteen hours after he did not know what had happened." Mr. Carmichael contended the trial judge had declined to accept a verdict of "not guilty."

Mr. Justice McPhillips remarked he considered it inconceivable that a father should kill an innocent child of eighteen months with intent.

RELATIVE SENTENCES
 Summing up his case, Col. Pepler drew attention to relative sentences, noting a term of three years was given frequently for obtaining money under false pretences. The Attorney-General thought seven years would be little enough.

Mr. Carmichael contended Garrigan had suddenly lost his mind and killed the child. He cited constables who arrested the prisoner to the effect that Garrigan was in an advanced stage of intoxication and did not know what had happened many hours later. Garrigan was devoted to the child, he said.

He had advised Garrigan to appeal but had received no instructions for one, Mr. Carmichael said.

Chief Justice Macdonald held that had the jury been convinced there was no intent, they should have acquitted Garrigan.

Regarding the trial judge's charge, Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald asked why no appeal had been made for Garrigan. Mr. Carmichael replied the prisoner was destitute. Such costs could have been met at the public expense, Mr. Justice Macdonald replied.

Meet Tomorrow On Writ Issue
 Council and Public Meetings on Injunction and Disqualification

Two definite moves were scheduled tomorrow in connection with action to disqualify Mayor David Brown as members of the City Council.

The City Council will meet as a committee of the whole, with the finance committee, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss the advisability of appealing the injunction granted to John Day restraining the city from carrying through the Henley civic refunding scheme under its original arrangements.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow evening a meeting of ratepayers, sponsored by R. Margison, has been called for the Council Chamber "to vindicate the integrity of Mayor Leeming and Alderman P. R. Brown," according to Mr. Margison's words.

Questioned today, Fred Crowhurst, president, and Arthur Hindler, secretary, of the Victoria Ratepayers Association, declared the public meeting was not called by their organization.

The meeting of the council in committee tomorrow follows tabling of communications from the city's council, the city solicitor and Mayor David Leeming suggesting the injunction be appealed. The meeting was delayed on the assumption some new development might arise.

My Boyhood Ambition

A SURVEYOR

"My ambition as a lad was to be a surveyor, and the nearest I ever got to it was the chain gang," says Detective Henry Jarvis.

"I have no quarrel with my present job, but if I had my time over again I think I would still want to be a surveyor."

"The first dollar I earned was in my father's drygoods store in Kent, England. I sold everything from blankets to lace, but dodged the lingerie. Then I got tired of it and came to Canada."

"I drifted into police work purely by accident. I chummed up in France with a son of the late Deputy Police Chief Palmer. I was chatting with him one day just before we were going into the trenches. He told me he didn't expect to come out alive that trip and his premonition of death proved correct."

"I met his father after the war. He asked me why I didn't go into the police force. I had never thought of it before, but I did. I have been in over fifteen years now."

LOSS-LEADERS ARE ASSAILED
 Price-cutting Prevails Here, George Macdonald Tells Merchants

Unfair business practices, especially loss-leaders, were assailed at a luncheon meeting of the Retail Credit Granters' Association and the Retail Merchants' Section of the Chamber of Commerce in Spencer's dining-room today.

"Loss-leaders are the worst of all price-cutting," declared George Macdonald. "Loss-leaders create havoc and bring about reduced wages and bankruptcy."

Victoria was one of the worst places for loss-leaders, Mr. Macdonald said, and referred to prices of groceries which he had bought recently. For a pound of shortening the wholesale price was twelve and a half cents he paid seven cents. Tomato juice which jobbers quoted at four and a half cents a can was sold here for three cents for ten cents.

Other groceries which he had bought below cost as loss-leaders included: Tea, wholesale price forty and a half cents a pound, store price thirty-five cents a pound; corn flakes, wholesale price six and a half cents a package, store price five cents a package; and rolled oats, wholesale price twenty cents a package, store price fifteen cents a package.

"The public may think they are benefiting and they are for a time," Mr. Macdonald said, "but the result of this kind of thing is going to be bad for everyone."

He saw it as an attempt to drive competition out of business. This would fall heaviest on the consumer in the end as without competition he would have to pay more for his goods.

Other unfair business practices he attacked were secret agreements between manufacturers and distributors, deceptive advertising, and long term selling, which favored large firms.

Mr. Macdonald expressed a great admiration for President Roosevelt and saw the only cure for price-cutting in some kind of legislation like the N.R.A.

Pleads Closer Understanding

Canada Has Part in World Relations, Hon. R. R. Bruce Tells Clubs

The need for Canada to foster a greater understanding between nations, both in the world in general and in the specific case of her own relations with Japan and the Orient, was stressed before one hundred members of the Canadian and Kiwanis Clubs at a luncheon at the Empress Hotel today by Hon. R. R. Bruce, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and newly appointed Canadian Ambassador to Japan.

Mr. Bruce asked the question: "What is the greatest need in the world today?" and answered it: "What we need today in the very worst way is international tolerance, international sanity, closer international relations and co-operation."

"Looking towards the European scene," he quoted the words of King Edward that "humanity is crying out for peace."

"In every European nation, including England, there was a terrible uncertainty."

CURSE OF FEAR
 "The greatest curse in the world today is fear—fear among nations, fear in commerce. Fear breeds hatred, and hatred breeds war," said Mr. Bruce.

Canada and the North American continent as a whole could play a great part in re-establishing the confidence of Europe and the Eastern world. In doing so they could prevent the return of the world to the jungle era.

Mr. Bruce made a special plea against "throwing stones" at the League of Nations, whose principles were sound despite failures in their execution.

Turning to the country in which he will shortly represent the Dominion of Canada, Mr. Bruce spoke of its great development which paralleled that of Canada in time, but far exceeded it in achievement.

He told of the manner in which the island empire, with a population now totaling 9,000,000 crowded into a space a little more than half the size of British Columbia, had risen from the state of medievalism in which Perry had found it in 1859 to its ranking place among the nations of the world.

It had risen to that place, he said, despite a total lack of resources. For that reason, Canada as a provider of primary products stood to share in every advance of Japanese progress.

TRADE MISSIONS
 In this connection he begged Canadians in their relations with Japan to remember the proverb that a spoonful of oil goes further than a quart of vinegar, and added a plea for their support for the trade mission which will sail for Japan in January.

"It is the business men rather than the statesmen and politicians who can help most," he said.

Mr. Bruce concluded his address with an assurance of the enthusiasm which he was taking with him into his new position.

The new ambassador was introduced by J. W. Hudson, vice-president of the Canadian Club, and thanked by Hugh Allan of the Kiwanis Club. Mr. Hudson extended the wishes of the two organizations and the people of Victoria in general that Mr. Bruce's term of office in Japan would be a happy and successful one.

Mr. Bruce made a special plea against "throwing stones" at the League of Nations, whose principles were sound despite failures in their execution.

Wheat to Reach $1.25 in Price
Prairie Farmers are Now Heading For Coast, Says G. W. Goodall
"We are going to have $1.25 wheat," declared G. W. Goodall, western manager of The Monetary Times of Canada, telling of the greatly improved conditions on the prairies.
"This has been the best year for the prairies since 1929," said the Winnipegger, who has been covering the western territory since 1908.
"The wheat crop in Manitoba, while smaller in actual bushels, is of higher grade and is bringing good prices."
Before he left for the west, Mr. Goodall was informed by a Winnipeg bank manager that the farmers of the southwest district in Manitoba were clearing up their obligations and paying off their chattel mortgages, which clearly indicated the trend toward better times for the Canadian farmer.
WINTER TOURISTS
This better outlook on the prairies, Mr. Goodall said, would be reflected by a bigger movement of winter tourists from the grain-growing provinces to the British Columbia coast. With more money in their pockets than they have had for some time, the farmers and their families were already headed for Vancouver Island on holiday, he said.
The crops had moved out much earlier this year in every section of prairies, with the exception of the Peace River area.
This movement, while it had speeded up business up to the present, would react somewhat adversely on freight traffic later in the year, the visitor thought.
ITALY BUYING
Italy, he said, was buying up a great quantity of Canadian wheat, and France and other European countries were going to buy more, Mr. Goodall said.
While in the city today, Mr. Goodall called on Frank G. Macdonald of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau and informed him that the bureau's work was getting results.

May Reach Only Half Objective
Only $5,141 Collected By Red Cross to Date in $15,000 Campaign
By all indications the Canadian Red Cross Society's campaign in Victoria to raise funds for provincial and local needs will barely reach half of its $15,000 objective, it was intimated this morning by Hugh M. Birch-Jones, provincial commissioner.
With a fair number of reports yet to be received, collections to date total $5,141.48.
There are still a large number of the workers in Division A, handling special gifts, to be heard from, and forty companies in the city and district have yet to complete internal canvasses among their employees.
Because of this fact, and in the hope that there are yet citizens who wish to contribute, the books will remain open at the Canadian Red Cross Society office, Belmont Building, until Saturday, October 17.
However, despite the fact that the collections have so far been a long way below what was anticipated, the Red Cross takes comfort from the considerable interest which the campaign has served to arouse in the society's work, especially among the business men of the city, and officers are confident that the effects of this interest will be seen in future years.

Godbold Appeal Is Dismissed
Court Rejects Plea Against Robbery and Shooting Sentence
John Roy Godbold, sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary by Chief Justice Morrison in Vancouver on May 22, on two charges, one of attempted robbery and another of shooting with intent to resist arrest, lost his motion for appeal today.
The B.C. Court of Appeal was unanimous in declining the motion for appeal after the application had been refused by Chief Justice Macdonald in his chambers.
The report of the trial judge stated Godbold, a native of England who went to New Westminster at the age of ten, had been charged with an attempt to rob a jewelry store in Vancouver on December 18, 1935. Screams of one of the employees had forced him and another man to flee and had drawn the attention of a police officer, with whom Godbold had engaged in gun fight before escaping in his car in the fog in Vancouver.
Employees of the jewelry store had identified Godbold; as had a car driver with whom he had collided in his flight and the police officer.
Godbold submitted an alibi defence.
An appeal of Jack Udell, sentenced for robbery while armed, in Vancouver, was set to the foot of the list in order to allow the prisoner an opportunity to secure counsel.
Madrid, Oct. 6. (Associated Press).—The Spanish government today placed a tight embargo on gold, silver and copper. It decreed no one could leave the country with more than four pesetas in silver.

CATCHY MUSIC AT DOMINION
Gene Raymond and Ann Southern are Co-starred in "Walking on Air"
Demonstrating the way in which tuneful catchy music may be used to enhance a film and further the plot at the same time, RKO Radio's comedy, "Walking on Air" gives motion picture audiences popular song hits without coming under the category of a musical. The picture is now being shown at the Dominion Theatre.
Bert Kalmar, Harry Ruby and Sid Silvers composed "Cabin on the Hill-top" and "My Heart Wants to Dance" and "Let's Make a Wish" for Gene Raymond and Ann Southern, co-starred.
Kalmar and Ruby, besides authoring many popular song hits, wrote the story, music and lyrics of "Duck Soup," the screen play, music and lyrics of "Hips Hips Hooray," and had a hand in the writing of "Kentucky Kernels," "Horsefeathers" and "The Kid from Spain."
Also being shown as the second feature on this programme is "Two Against the World," starring Humphrey Bogart and Beverly Roberts.

ATLAS THEATRE
Long established as a serious emotional actress, Barbara Stanwyck will be seen in light romantic comedy when RKO Radio's "The Bride Walks Out" opens at the Atlas Theatre today. Gene Raymond and Robert Young appear opposite the star, and Helen Broderick and Ned Sparks have featured comedy roles.
PLAZA THEATRE
George Arliss, one of the greatest motion picture stars ever sent to America from England is the star of the picture, "Mister Hobo," which is now attracting large audiences to the Plaza Theatre.
When he was chosen for the picture, Mr. Arliss received the knighthood of the road from Jeff Davis, widely known and popular King of the Hoboes. Mr. Arliss received the title at a meeting of the hoboes in Toledo, Ohio, where the organization's official newspaper, Hobo Review, is published.

Park Transfer Is Proposed
Ottawa to Complete Yellowhead Highway When It Gets Mount Robson
Canadian Press
McBride, B.C., Oct. 6.—Hon. T. A. Crerar, federal Minister of the Interior and Natural Resources, yesterday told the McBride Board of Trade the federal government was waiting for the British Columbia Government to transfer Mount Robson Park before completing the Yellowhead Highway.
He said a survey would be made at once of the highway between Jasper, Alta., and Tete-Jean, B.C., thirty miles south and east of here.
The minister is on his way to Vancouver, accompanied by J. G. Ferguson, M.P. for Cariboo, and Tom J. O'Neill, M.P. for Kamloops.
The whole question of park control will be discussed by the B.C. government with Hon. T. A. Crerar when he reaches the coast. Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands, said today.
The proposal to transfer Mount Robson Park to the Dominion was

ATLAS THEATRE
Acclaimed as one of the truly great pictures of the year, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" plays today and tomorrow at the Oak Bay Theatre. The cast includes some of the great- discussed with the federal authorities by Mr. Gray in Ottawa some months ago. It depends now on negotiations respecting certain water leases within the area which would be, presumably, taken over and administered by the Dominion.

Selective Buying With Prices Higher On Wall St. Market

Associated Press
New York, Oct. 6.—Selected stocks drove home another recovery spoke in today's market.

Oil, aircraft, farm implements, and a wide assortment of industrial specialties recorded advances of fractions to three or more points. Profit taking held back many of the old line leaders. Transfers were around 2,350,000 shares.

Conspicuous on the upside were Standard Oil of New Jersey, Douglas Aircraft, Bendix, International Harvester, International Paper and Power A, American Smelting, Canadian Pacific and Canada Dry.

Motors, rails and alcohol held to a restricted range.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—My first marriage ended disastrously for the reason that although I was good and kind to my wife and gave her every luxury, she was unfaithful to me. Recently I have met a young widow whom I am thinking of marrying, but she has confessed to me that during her previous marriage and since her husband's death, she has had numerous affairs with other men. My problem is this: Is it likely that a woman who has been untrue to her first husband, and more or less promiscuous since, will be likely to be faithful to any man? Having gone through what I did during my first marriage, and knowing what I do about the past of my proposed second wife, would I have the faith in her and the feeling of security necessary for a happy union?

Answer—Not a chance. Even Lloyd's wouldn't underwrite a marriage like that. The risk would be too great. The philandering woman is even more incurable than the philandering man for, after all, the feminine sex is restless and dissatisfied by nature, and once a woman starts out on a life of adventure, nothing stops her but age or the grave.

Of course, the double-crossers in love are no more to be trusted than the cheaters in business. Honor and honesty are a matter of principle ingrained in the character and a man or woman either possesses them or lacks them, and if they lack them it is just too bad for those they marry, but there is nothing they can do about it.

If a man is a born petticoat chaser, every fluttering skirt will be a signal for him to get up and follow as long as he lives. His wife may be ten times as good-looking, ten times as attractive, ten times as gay and amusing as the other woman. He may even love and admire her more than any other woman on earth, but that won't keep him faithful to her.

A man may be a paragon of a husband, tender, affectionate, considerate, generous to his wife, but if she lacks a sense of loyalty and pines for adventure and the thrill of stolen kisses she will have affairs with other men even though she knows it will mean the wreck of her home, and the loss of her children if she is found out. Love thieves will be love thieves to the end of the chapter because it is their nature to.

It is only superhuman vanity that makes a man and woman think that they have some superlative charm that will make those who have been false to every one else true to them. No one possesses this fatal fascination for a philanderer, for what he or she seeks is novelty, change, and new sensations, and no one person can supply these demands.

The woman who marries a philanderer takes a big chance at happiness. Heaven knows, but a man who marries a woman philanderer just asks for trouble. And gets it. A man may have little affairs with women that just tickle his vanity and are merely skin deep, so to speak, but a woman's disloyalty to her husband goes to the bone and when she chucks her bonnet over the windmill she throws with it all of her principles.

Anyway, there can be no happiness in a marriage in which the husband and wife cannot trust each other. And it is folly for a man to marry a woman whose past record will make him suspicious of her every act.

DEAR MISS DIX—You say that "when the cat is away the mice will play" and that those wives who go off for a year in Europe, or three months in the summer, and leave husband alone, are pretty sure to find out when they return that he has not spent his time mourning over their absence, but has found a nice little playmate to console him. Maybe, but what about wife? Has she spent her time gazing at husband's photograph and grieving over how she misses him?

Answer—Sometimes. Not always. If she is young and good-looking and has counted her calories, she can generally find some one to whom she can talk about John the first time she meets him, and thereafter discuss her soul longings and how little her husband understands her real nature.

But a fat, middle-aged woman who has lost her complexion and figure and who has a couple of children tagging her is practically immune from temptation, whereas no matter how paunchy and bald a man is, he is the clapper's delight so long as he has the price of a good time in his pocket. It's a man's world, son, especially in vacation time.

Anyway, this matter of the length of time that husbands and wives should be separated is one that should be handled with care and moderation. Undoubtedly it is a good thing for husbands and wives to be parted now and then. For two people, no matter how much they love each other nor how admirable they are, to stay together all the time is like trying to eat thirty quills in thirty days. They fall on each other's appetites. They get fed up on each other and think they have fallen out of love with each other, when they are merely bored. A railroad ticket would save many a divorce, but should be a return ticket good only for thirty days. That would give husband and wife a chance to miss each other, but not time enough to learn how to do without each other and to make new playmates.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have just found that I was born out of wedlock. I was stupified, but I have tried to take it philosophically. However, I am engaged to be married to a very fine girl, and what I want to know is whether I shall let this fact rob me of my happiness? If I tell her, I fear I will lose her. I have a good job and am well liked and respected. Shall I tell her?

Answer—By all means tell the girl. If she loves you, it will not make any difference to her. Sooner or later she will be bound to find it out and then she would have a right to feel that you had not given her a square deal by keeping the fact of your birth from her.

DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily's Pail of Holes

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When Uncle Wiggily's wife asked him one afternoon to go to the store for milk for the rabbit children he said at once: "Of course I'll go, my dear. How much milk do you want?"

"You had better get plenty of milk while you are at it," said Mrs. Longears. "Then I'll have some for breakfast. Take that large wooden pail. Nurse Jane will get it for you. Have it filled with milk at the store and please don't spill any of it on the way home."

"I promise you I won't," said Uncle Wiggily. "No, Nurse, I won't. I'll be careful. The large wooden pail, if you please."

"Here it is," said Miss Puss' Wussy. She gave Uncle Wiggily a wooden pail that once, in a country grocery store, had been filled with candy. When it was empty the grocery store gave it to Uncle Wiggily as Mrs. Longears had asked for a large pail in which to get the milk each day. The bunny children drank a great deal of milk.

Humming a little song, whistling and twinking his pink nose, Uncle Wiggily hopped on to the same store where the old dog gentleman had given him the wooden pail.

"Please fill this with milk," said the bunny to the dog.

"There you are," barked the dog as he did this. "Are you in a hurry, Mr. Longears?"

"Not specially," was the answer. "It is still afternoon and I don't need to be at my bungalow with the milk before dusk. What's on your mind?"

TALK ABOUT PRESIDENTS

"Well, I was going to ask you who you thought would be our next President."

"That's something I can't tell you," said Uncle Wiggily. "For I have thought a lot about it. So the two talked about the election and things like that and never once did Uncle Wiggily say it was getting late and he'd better hop along with his milk."

"Well, perhaps you had," barked the dog.

But half way through the woods Uncle Wiggily met Mr. Twistytail the fat pig gentleman, and Mr. Twistytail grunted and said:

"Who is going to be our next President?"

"I can tell you that," said Uncle Wiggily. "For I have thought a lot about it. So the two talked about a rabbit and a pig will when they get together. And Uncle Wiggily talked so much he did not notice what was happening to the wooden pail of milk he had set on a stump. With his back to it he talked and talked and talked."

Now, it was then that a woodpecker bird came flying along. As soon as the
